Penn State University students gathered around televisions at the campus' HUB-Robeson Center Facility awaiting CNN coverage of Louis Freeh's report were stunned when, just before its 9 a.m. release, the channel suddenly switched to public access, according to reports. A Penn State blog later reported Freeh's press conference was aired on the public access channel.

Freeh report blasts Penn State's leaders, says fear of bad publicity guided actions Fans, alumni stunned, some calling for repudiation of Paterno's campus namesakes Psychologist says some will always support JoePa

Penn State leaders including late football coach Joe Paterno covered up Jerry Sandusky's sexual abuse of children for years, showing a callous disregard for the victims to protect a multimillion-dollar football program, former FBI director Louis Freeh said on Thursday.

Freeh also singled out the former university president, Graham Spanier, and said a collective failure to stop Sandusky allowed the former assistant coach to continue luring victims for more than a decade.

The 267-page report revealed the extent to which Paterno and others conspired to cover up allegations against Sandusky as far back as 1998, delivering a new blow to the reputation of a football program with the motto "success with honor."

The findings also provided new fuel for lawsuits — one expert predicted the university will eventually shell out more than $100 million in damages. Victims and their advocates have long complained they were sacrificed by university leaders for the cash and prestige generated by Penn State football.

"They were morally bankrupt, and wrong legally," said Thomas Kline, a lawyer who represents Victim 5 in the case.

Freeh blamed Spanier, Paterno, former Athletic Director Tim Curley and former university Vice President Gary Schultz for working in concert on a cover-up that began as early as 1998, when university police investigated allegations of abuse but let Sandusky off with a warning.

"Even though they all knew about the 1998 incident, the best they could muster to protect Sandusky's victims was to ask Sandusky not to bring his 'guests' into the Penn State facilities," Freeh said, adding that bad publicity would have upset donors and damaged the Penn State brand.

Other allegations surfaced in 2000 and 2001, when adults reported witnessing Sandusky molesting boys in the locker room showers.

The report could influence Penn State as it prepares for potential civil lawsuits. The university has already invited victims to try to resolve claims against the school.

Curley and Schultz have pleaded not guilty to charges of perjury and failure to report suspected abuse in the case. Spanier and Paterno were not charged. REUTERS

Quoted

"Our most saddening and sobering finding is the total disregard for the safety and welfare of Sandusky's child victims by the most senior leaders at Penn State. The most powerful men at Penn State failed to take any steps for 14 years to protect the children who Sandusky victimized."

FORMER FBI DIRECTOR LOUIS FREEH IN HIS 267-PAGE REPORT RELEASED THURSDAY

Time line

- 1969: Penns State hires Sandusky as an assistant football coach.
- 1977: Sandusky founded The Second Mile, a charity dedicated to helping troubled children.
- 1994: According to a report by a grand jury set up in 2011 to investigate Sandusky, a boy the jury identifies as Victim 7 met Sandusky through The Second Mile. He told the grand jury that he had a "blurry memory" of having improper contact with the coach when they showered together in the campus football locker room a couple of years later.
- 1996 or 1997: A boy identified by the grand jury as Victim 4, now 27, began a relationship with Sandusky that later resulted in repeated sexual violations.
- 1998: A boy identified as Victim 6, now 24, told the grand jury that Sandusky showered with him when he was 11. The boy told his mother, who reported the incident to university police.
- 1999: Sandusky retired as defensive coordinator but retained access to Penn State athletic facilities. Next, the American Football Coaches Association named him the major college Assistant Coach of the Year.
- September 2010: Sandusky retired from The Second Mile.

Paterno downfall gives fans 'double shock'

A leading sports psychologist characterized the negative reaction after the Freeh report as "double shock."

Joel Fish, a sports psychologist and director of the Center for Sport Psychology in Philadelphia, said the average Penn State fan or alum is in shock from the report's deplorable findings, but that Joe Paterno's iconic status adds to the outrage.

"Sometimes the more beloved a person is, the more hurt we are when they don't live up to our expectations and what we think of them," explained Fish, who has worked locally for the Phillies, Flyers and Sixers. "I think for many people in this state the shock is intense – double shock, if you will."

▶ Paterno

Another reason the scandal has elicited such strong emotion is because sports figures have become more revered in today's society and Paterno was one of the biggest celebrities.

"Now we get sports 24/7, you see athletes so often now you feel like you know them. I think because we have such access to athletes now you can really start to feel like you know them because you see them so often," he said.

As for Paterno's lasting legacy, Fish said some people will maintain a negative view due to the Sandusky scandal, while others will take into account his good will and contributions to Penn State. "For a certain percentage of people, the legacy will take into account the whole picture and not just this."

Blithe cynicism

▶ @jtTiso: Joe Paterno may not of committed the crimes against the children, but he drove the creepy van and gave Sandusky candy and puppies.

▶ @MustoC: I hope Joe Paterno is being touched by an angel.

Remove Paterno statue

▶ @sabiribrahim: If Penn State does not dissociate itself from Joe Paterno, then it should be kicked out of the Big Ten Conference. #paterno #pennstate

▶ @CoMoonchi: Joe Paterno has no legacy. Death Penalty to Penn State is only solution for the extreme lack of institutional accountability. #pennstate

▶ @ChgoGuy32: Penn State: Remove paterno statue, apologize and ELIMINATE football for good. Sorry. but only right move!

▶ @Rosenberg_Mike: Penn State should keep the Joe Paterno statue. Just move it so he is looking the other way.

Leave the statue

▶ @marabaybay: Joe Paterno is dead. Leave him alone! Removing his statue will not help at all.

▶ @DTF_Brian: They shouldn't take down Paterno's statue, just leave it alone and don't do nothing about it. That's what he would want

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular rime, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

City banned from stopping outside homeless meals

Federal judge issued temporary injunction against enforcing law against charities feeding homeless around Love Park Permanent ruling in a few months

PAIGE OZAROSKI/METRO

Charitable volunteers fed hungry homeless along JFK Boulevard during the spring.

A federal judge Thursday prohibited the city of Philadelphia from enforcing a ban on feeding the homeless on city parkland.

In a preliminary ruling, U.S. District Court Judge William Yohn said the city did not have good reasons for moving outdoor feedings from the Benjamin Franklin Parkway to an alternative site on the City Hall apron.

"It seems to me that the ban on the Parkway ... does nothing to achieve that objective [to end homelessness], it just relocates the outdoor location," he said.

The temporary injunction will stand until Yohn issues formal findings, which could either block enforcement for one year or uphold the measure. It means groups can continue providing meals for the time being.

The ban, which prohibits feeding groups of three or more people in city parks with the exception of picnics and city-sponsored events, took effect June 1, but was challenged by four religious groups who have provided meals on the Parkway for at least a decade. They argued the measure would impede them from providing meals to the less fortunate, which is part of their faith, and harm those who would not or are physically unable to go to the City Hall site. The groups and their supporters clapped and hugged each other following Yohn's decision.

Homeless people living on the city's streets on any given summer night, according to leading anti-poverty advocate Sister Mary Scullion, with fewer in winter when it's colder outside

"We're hopeful that homeless people and that those who feed and try to serve others, we hope that these issues will ultimately prevail," said City Councilwoman Jannie Blackwell, present for much of the three-day hearing.

Yohn heard testimony from several witnesses, including the plaintiffs, Sister Mary Scullion of Project H.O.M.E. and Mayor Michael Nutter. The city claimed the regulations were based on concerns about dignity, food-borne illnesses and trash in Fairmount Park.

The two sides are expected to sit down and come up with a long-term solution. If one cannot be reached, the matter could go to trial next year.

"I think a resolution is not only possible, but desirable. There is no reason for this to be adversarial," said attorney Paul Messing, of civil rights firm Kairys, Rudovsky, Messing and Feinberg, who represented the plaintiffs.

Wells Fargo settles discrimination suit

Wells Fargo has agreed to pay $175 million to resolve allegations it discriminated against qualified African-American and Hispanic borrowers in its mortgage lending, the U.S. Justice Department said Thursday.

In the second-largest settlement of its kind, the biggest U.S. mortgage lender will pay $125 million to borrowers who were allegedly steered into higher-priced subprime loans or who paid higher fees and rates than white borrowers.

▶ Lawsuit settled.

Wells Fargo will also contribute $50 million to homebuyer assistance programs in eight metropolitan areas around the country. The government identified those areas needing the most help in recovering from the housing crisis.

The settlement, which needs approval from a judge, would end the investigation into whether the fourth-largest U.S. bank between 2004 and 2009 knowingly targeted minorities for risky mortgages that came with higher costs, according to court documents filed.

The bank signaled in a securities filing in May that it could face civil charges from the U.S. Justice Department. The bank said the settlement also resolves pending litigation filed in 2009 by the State of Illinois on behalf of borrowers, and resolves an investigative complaint filed in 2010 by the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission.

"This a case about real people, African-American and Latino, who suffered real harm as a result of Wells Fargo's discriminatory lending practices," Thomas Perez, U.S. assistant attorney general for civil rights, said.

"People with similar qualifications should be treated similarly. They should be judged by the content of their credit-worthiness and not the color of their skin."

The government investigation found that loans submitted to Wells Fargo by mortgage brokers had varied interest rates, fees and costs based only on race. REUTERS

Yahoo breach puts other e-mail users at risk, firm says

Search engine giant Yahoo reported the theft of some 400,000 user names and passwords to access websites including its own, saying that hackers had taken advantage of a security vulnerability in its computer systems.

The security firm Rapid7 said a data file published on the Web contained logins and cleartext passwords for Yahoo as well as several other Internet services, including Google Inc.'s Gmail and AOL as well as Microsoft Corp's Hotmail, MSN and Live sites.

"We can assume that tens of thousands of people on services outside of Yahoo could be compromised," said Rapid7 researcher Marcus Carey.

Yahoo apologized for the breach in a written statement, responding to more bad news for a company that has lost two chief executives in a year. REUTERS

LIVE AFTER DEATH

▶ From left: Ambha Love, Wendy Wilson and Matt Jardine, the spawn of Beach Boys, honor their fathers' music with California Saga; Adam Lambert sings with Queen guitarist Brian May and drummer Roger Taylor; and the talk of Coachella, Virtual 2Pac, are all innovative approaches to maintaining musicians' legacies.

It's only fitting that the first words the world heard from an amazingly lifelike rendering of Tupac Shakur were, "What the f— is up?"

Many wondered the same thing as they saw a rapper who had died 16 years ago on the stage at the Coachella festival.

The answer to the question posed by the entity now known as Virtual 2Pac is this: Combining music and technology, we've arrived at a crossroads of future and past.

The generation growing up in the information age has only known a time where every piece of recorded music is at its disposal. This accessibility has created listeners with wider ranges of musical taste and knowledge than ever before, but also a sense that being able to hear or see whatever you want, whenever you want, is a right — not a privilege.

Many artists from the dawn of the recorded era are past retirement age — and even more have died — so the ability to witness these acts live has traditionally presented some difficulty. But within the past year, concertgoers have been able to experience performances that previously seemed unthinkable.

"There are so many tribute bands around, and not all good. If anybody's going to play our music, I want them to do it in a brilliant and scintillating way." ROGER TAYLOR OF QUEEN

Roger Taylor of Queen says he had to do something to reawaken the sounds of his former band because he knew audiences wanted to hear it. In addition to playing a few gigs with Queen guitarist Brian May and Adam Lambert, Taylor recruited members online and became the musical director of something called the Queen Extravaganza. He taught these young musicians himself how to play his songs and sent them out on tour. Could this sort of apprenticeship be a new model for passing down sounds? Will other bands follow suit?

"I'd be interested in seeing if they did," says Taylor. "It takes a lot of work. .. I can say that I think we've been very lucky in terms of who we've found. We have two of the most genius guitar players, and we have four amazing singers and a great rhythm section."

All of this for a band who had four members while active.

"We're going to do all of those buried parts, all of the six-part harmonies," says Taylor. "It was a labor of love, but it was a lot of labor."

On the Beach Boys' current tour, they, too, have found that augmentation has helped bring their recordings to life in a way that wasn't previously possible. Guitarist Al Jardine says having so many more people onstage has been a bonus.

"For the first time in the history of our music-making, we've had enough people on stage to do all the parts," he says. "We overdubbed so much — we were harmony fanatics — that we never could put all of it together in one place. ... In 'Good Vibrations' it was like, 'OK, either we have to do this part or that part. We'll leave out the "Ooh-bop-bops."' Now you've got the 'ooh-bop-bops,' the 'good good' and you've got the whole thing."

This isn't the only measure in place to ensure Beach Boys music lives on. A group called California Saga, who played their fourth gig this week, has been formed by the kids of Beach Boys. The group is comprised of Jardine's sons Matt and Adam; Wilson Phillips singers Carnie and Wendy Wilson, who are the daughters of Brian Wilson; Mike Love's children Christian and Ambha Love; Carl Wilson's son Justyn Wilson; and Dennis Wilson's son Carl B. Wilson. They specialize in deep cuts from their dads' catalog. Their first official gig in June was opening for the Beach Boys — the ultimate seal of approval.

'How I wish ... '

Damian Darlington is the musical director, guitarist and singer of a Pink Floyd tribute act called Brit Floyd. Among his credentials: an invitation to play a birthday party for Floyd guitarist David Gilmour. While performing "Comfortably Numb," the tribute band was joined by Floyd keyboardist Rick Wright, who died in 2008.

"It's very sad. A lot of these people seem to be passing away," says Darlington. "That's all part of the attraction of tribute bands, I suppose. There's less and less chance as the years go by to actually see the original people play this music, but there's still the demand to hear this music live. This whole other generation is discovering it all the time and they're equally enthusiastic."

What's next?

Elvis is back in the building

Ed Ulbrich, chief creative officer of Digital Domain, the company that created Virtual 2Pac, says his company's next project is fit for a king.

"Right now, we're focusing on Elvis," he says. "We're certainly having other conversations, but Elvis Presley is next up for us."

Ulbrich is tight-lipped when it comes to revealing those other potential acts. When asked what musician he would bring to the stage if he had his choice, he says, "I would love to be able to answer that question for you, but I've already done it. Whomever I would love, we've already contacted. ... So I can't really talk about that."

So what can Ulbrich divulge about Elvis 2.0?

"Let's put it this way," he says, making sure to consider his words, "what we're planning in tribute to The King needs to be nothing less than spectacular and epic. So we are creating and designing something quite enormous and grand."

3 Films not to miss at QFest

Now in its 18th year, Philly's QFest is the largest LGBTQ film festival on the East Coast, packing 55 features from 26 countries into 11 days of screenings ◗ Where to start? ◗ We hit up managing director Carol Coombes for a tasting menu

Drama

'I Do'

July 20, 7:15 p.m.; July 21, 2:15 p.m., Ritz East
A centerpiece feature of the festival, this drama is one of many addressing gay marriage this year. "We, as programmers, don't consciously go out and say, 'Well, this is an election year,' but these are the films that are coming to us, the stories that filmmakers want to tell," says Coombes.

Starring and written by QFest darling David W. Ross, "I Do" tells the story of a gay British man working in the U.S. who marries his best friend Ali when his visa expires. When the arrangement crumbles, the true love of his life, Mano, can't provide him with the same protection.

Documentary

'I Stand Corrected'

July 19, 7:15 p.m.; July 20, 5 p.m., Ritz East
This documentary follows King of Prussia native Jennifer Leitham, a successful jazz artist who began her career as John Leitham. Part of an expanded offering of films addressing transgender themes, it will be screened along with "Transpass," a short film by Wren Warner examining the implications of SEPTA's gender-specific transpasses.

Drama

'Melting Away'

Friday, 5 p.m.; Sunday, 9:15 p.m.; Ritz at the Bourse
Inspired by a 2009 shooting spree at a Tel Aviv LGBTQ youth center — after which many parents shunned the young victims — this Israeli drama follows a family as they attempt to locate the transgender son they abandoned. "It's an amazing, healing film," says Coombes. "There was a lot of anguish in Tel Aviv, and these filmmakers made a response to something that was horrific."

Putting some spring in their step

- Sometimes, choreographers just want to have fun
- BalletX's summer series takes cues from the '80s

Ballet doesn't have to be all about dying swans and star-crossed lovers. Occasionally, says choreographer Adam Hougland, you need to ditch all the tragedy and just have a little fun. "I've been doing this for 10 years, and it can get a bit boring to always be beating yourself up artistically on stage," Hougland says. "Choreographers get down in the dumps wanting to be deep and serious, but that only gets you so far."

Quoted

"Sometimes you get sick of listening to another minimalist Philip Glass-sounding piece of contemporary music."
ADAM HOUGLAND

Hougland's new piece, "Mash-Up," is part of BalletX's annual summer series and is anything but somber. Dancers clad in regular clothing will move to the sounds of the 1980s parody band Big Daddy, who recast then-current pop hits by the likes of Bruce Springsteen and Madonna in a 1950s style.

"Sometimes you get sick of listening to another minimalist Philip Glass-sounding piece of contemporary music," Hougland says. "There's no less craft or wit in this music, and I always like new spins on things. As you get a little bit older, you want to revisit things that were familiar in your childhood but in a completely new way that's even more far away and retro."

Film review

'Ice Age: Continental Drift'

Grade: B-

We love the "Simpsons" short that plays before "Ice Age: Continental Drift." It's a fun thriller for kids with jokes that parents and film geeks will love. In fact, we wanted more of that and less "Ice Age." The main feature is nicely animated but saddled with a story so by-the-book it feels like it would have been old hat even in the Ice Age.

Main character Manny (Ray Romano) is not aided by a lazy script, which feels like it was run through the Cliche-O-Matic. The continental divide device is novel, but the theme — family and friends mean everything — has been done better. Couple that with jokes that feel tacked on — apropos of nothing, a bird asks if water tastes like boogers when mammoths drink through their trunks — and you're left with a movie that is as lifeless as the expression on Manny's face.

As nemesis Captain Gutt, Peter Dinklage is horrifying and scuzzy — in a good way. Also horrifying: They still have 20,000 years of history and sequel potential to go until Manny and pals retire.

TV watch list

ANDREW ECCLES/USA NETWORK

'Political Animals'

DRAMA. Sigourney Weaver plays the matriarch of a D.C. dynasty locked in a never-ending power struggle. The "Alien" star is the former first lady and current secretary of state whose philandering ex-husband (Ciaran Hinds) serves as a lingering source of scandal. Then there are her sons — the golden boy (James Wolk) and the screwup (Sebastian Stan) — who are forced to make their own sacrifices for the sake of the family name when a dogged reporter (Carla Gugino) reveals she has damning info about the clan. Miniseries premiere, Sunday, 10 p.m., USA

'Breaking Bad'

DRAMA. "Breaking Bad" creator Vince Gilligan has always said the story of chemistry teacher-turned-meth dealer Walter White (Bryan Cranston) was the progression of Mr. Chips becoming Scarface. That arc reached its high in last season's finale, when Walt blew up his lab — and bad dude boss. As the series enters its final season on Sunday, the fallout is the kind of shockingly ruthless, yet remarkably human drama that makes this one of the best series on TV. Season premiere, Sunday, 10 p.m., AMC

'Leverage'

DRAMA. Timothy Hutton's Robin Hood-esque criminal and his band of merry men (and women) return to take down a corrupt aviation exec. Season premiere, Sunday, 8 p.m., TNT

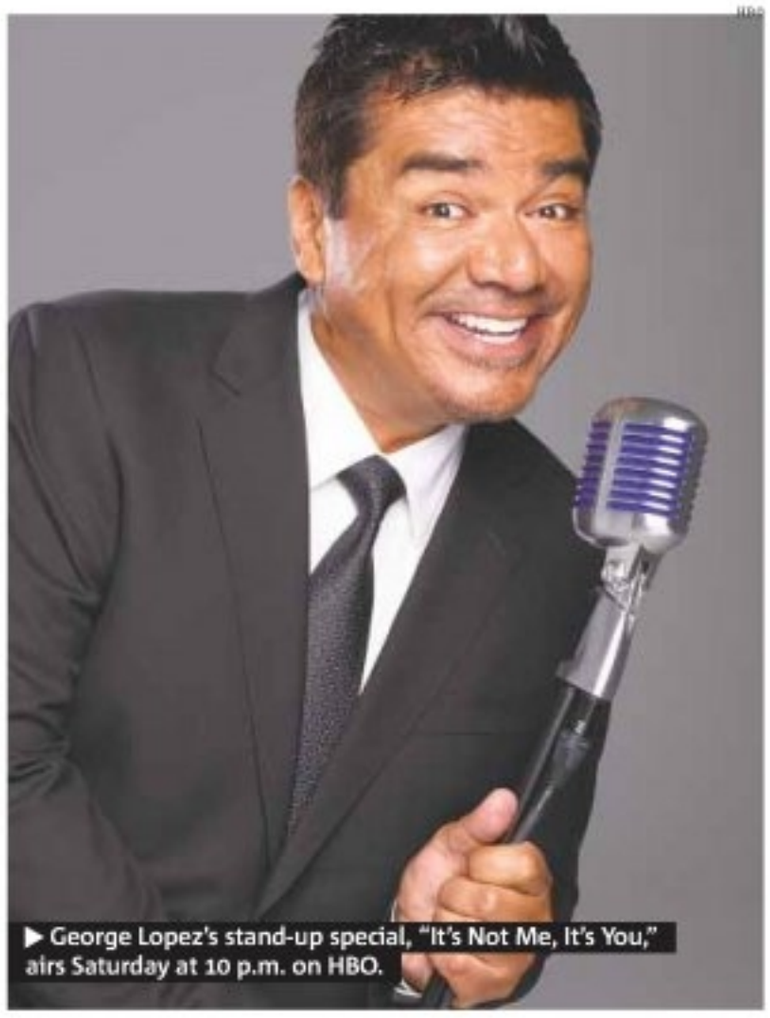
Lopez keeps it real

Honesty is the best policy for the comedian, who makes a return to HBO with a stand-up special on Saturday His political aspirations



▶ George Lopez's stand-up special, "It's Not Me, It's You," airs Saturday at 10 p.m. on HBO.

George Lopez returns to HBO this Saturday, back for his third special for the network, "It's Not Me, It's You." As for the cheeky title? Lopez says a bunch of ideas were tossed around, all derived from that simple phrase, which strikes a chord with him.

"In our society, honesty has taken a back seat to people withholding truths. They always accept responsibility when they know it's the other person. They say 'it's not you, it's me' because they don't want to upset anything. Direct is always better."

For the star, whose résumé includes movie, sitcom, talk show and stand-up work, coming back to live comedy is like coming home.

"You know, in doing [television], they hire you to be you, and there's somebody that tells you you're being too much of you, or 'be less of this,' or 'do less of that,' or 'that's gonna upset people.' But stand-up is still the freest form of expression."

It's worked so far for the performer. But Lopez already has his sights set on an alternate career for the future: the mayor of Los Angeles.

"I believe that Magic Johnson would be a tremendous mayor, because he's such a great businessman and well-loved in the community. But if he chooses not to, in years in the future, I would not be opposed to making a run." On his agenda? School reform, spending limits and … potholes?

"I have lovely rims on my cars that continue to be abused by potholes and the infrastructure of the town," he says. "[I saw] a pothole that had a cone in the hole — like, they didn't even put the cone outside of it, they put it in it. I didn't realize tar had became such a commodity."

meredith.engel@metro.us

Ladies man

The performer says he's especially grateful for the support from two particular women in his life.

Sandra Bullock: "Sandra is a tremendous woman," he says of the actress, who executive-produced "George Lopez" after lamenting about the lack of Latinos on TV. "I don't think I would have had an opportunity to create, had it not been for her."

His ex-wife, Ann Serrano: Though the newly single star says he is "not as friendly" with his ex these days, he's "honored to be alive and creating" thanks to her 2005 kidney donation to him.

Talking points

Steven Tyler resigns from 'Idol'

"American Idol" just got a little less rock 'n' roll. After two seasons on Fox's reality singing competition, Steven Tyler is stepping away from the judging table to return to his band, Aerosmith, full-time. "After some long ... hard ... thoughts ... I've decided it's time for me to let go of my mistress 'American Idol' before she boils my rabbit," Tyler said in a statement delivered by Fox. "I strayed from my first love, Aerosmith, and I'm back — but instead of begging on my hands and knees, I've got two fists in the air and I'm kicking the door open with my band. 'Idol' was over-the-top fun, and I loved every minute of it."

No replacement for Tyler has been announced.

Tatum never putting clothes on

Channing Tatum isn't surprised his male stripper movie, "Magic Mike" is a success — and he's already got a sequel planned. "We're working on the concept now," he tells the U.K. edition of Glamour. Meanwhile, Tatum is more than happy to throw his hat into the ring when it comes to who should star in the film adaptation of the steamy hit novel "Fifty Shades of Grey" — under the condition that he co-star with real-life wife Jenna Dewan. "I'd only be allowed if my wife was Ana."

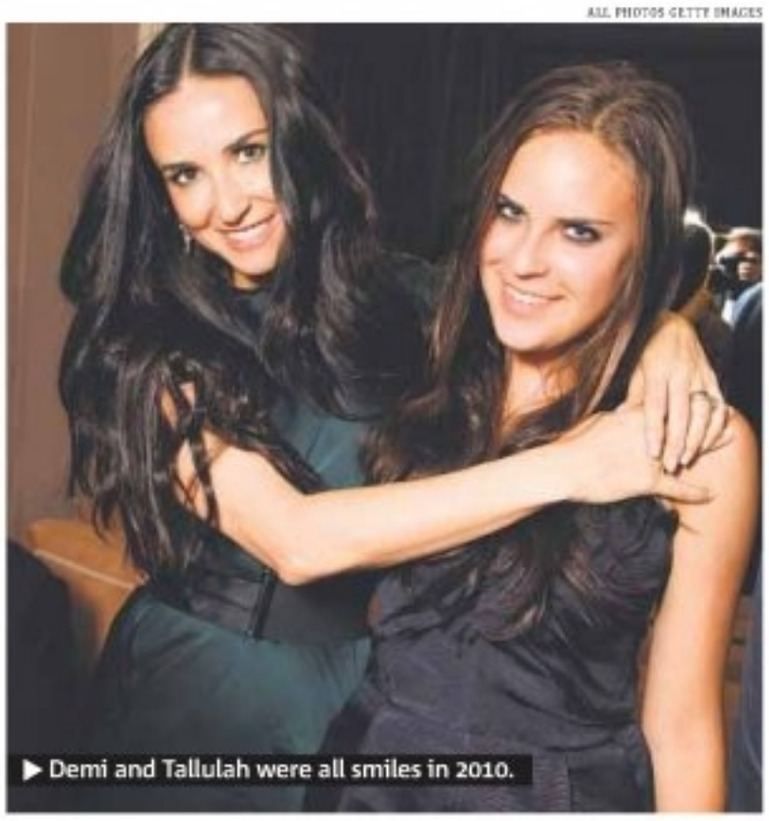
More trouble for Demi Moore

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES



▶ Demi and Tallulah were all smiles in 2010.

After her split from Ashton Kutcher and subsequent rehab trip, Demi Moore has been spotted out and about looking pretty great — or at least alive enough.

But it seems not all is well with her family just yet.

"There's a wedge between Demi and her girls," a source tells Us Weekly of her daughters, Rumer, Scout and Tallulah.

According to the source, Demi didn't speak to them at Tallulah's high school graduation last month.

"Demi is beside herself over the situation," a family friend tells RadarOnline.com. "She hasn't spoken to Scout, Rumer or Tallulah for weeks now. They won't return any of her calls, e-mails or texts.

Rich people, take note: If your teenagers don't need your car for the weekend, there is no limit to how long they can sulk.

Where's Drac when you need him?

Andrew Garfield might be young and British with hair you want to shove your face in, but don't compare the "Amazing Spider-Man" star to Robert Pattinson.

"The truth is, Andrew can't stand Rob. He hates that they're put in the same category because they're both English and around the same age," a source tells Us Weekly. "Andrew considers himself a 'serious actor' and sees Rob as the equivalent of a cheesy boy-bander because of 'Twilight.'"

Spider-Man vs. Edward Cullen: Why do we have a feeling this ends in a snuggle pile of fangs?

How old now?

Not surprisingly, reigning Blondie-in-Chief Kate Upton didn't go unnoticed at the Detroit Tigers game last week. Now, her reps are on the defensive, telling TMZ that whatever she was photographed drinking wasn't beer.

Why does is matter? Because apparently Kate Upton is a mere 20 years old, and this whole time has been letting us creep on her — and pretending to enjoy it! — while sober.

Seriously — someone buy this girl a drink, stat.

Gov't gumption good for Gitmo'ing gangsters?

RE: "THE PERSISTENCE OF SHEETS IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING": Bravo Diane, I agree 100%. Unfortunately the KKK does still exist. Your label of them reminds me of the defense authorization bill that was signed not long ago. In specific, the ability for the military to detain indefinitely without trial if one is labeled as a terrorist. I was initially uncomfortable with the bill, as it is a large boot stepping on our rights. After giving further thought, I believe that this isn't for the general law-abiding citizen to be concerned with. It's for the much bigger threats to our society. You know, the organized groups that routinely conduct shenanigans? That be the KKK, MS13, Bloods, Crips, Mongols, Hells Angels and the like. I believe that these groups are just across the line of being labeled domestic terrorists and that they will be the first to see this law go active. The language is already in police reports — terroristic threats, etc. One more quick adjustment to the laws, and they are all outta here. Something like that happening wouldn't have us too compassionate, I'd imagine. Believing this allows me to swallow that horse pill of a violation of my rights.

Experience makes up for low wages

RE: "GOVERNMENT SHOULD HELP THOSE TRYING TO HELP THEMSELVES": One aspect of the minimum wage debate that's been absent in this week's letters section is the benefit of getting on-the-job experience at a young age. Many employers will overlook education in favor of some training. But how do kids get jobs if the minimum wage is too high? They're not productive enough to warrant the $7.25/hour — but of course, it's perfectly legal to work for free at an unpaid internship. The minimum wage takes away the ability of young and unskilled workers to get hired at lower-paying jobs and begin learning valuable work skills.

Bushes members of 'Lucky Sperm Club'?

RE: "CLINTON AND DEMS SOW SEEDS OF FAILURE": To Raymond Collins: Nice of you to "partially" blame Republicans — 99.99% is still "partially"! You say Clinton forced the government to give loans to those who couldn't repay? What caused the 2008 recession is that Republican-buddy bankers did that, and then bet against their own and each others' loans! Then you ridicule Obama's "tired old ideas"? Lowering taxes on the rich is the Republicans' only idea, which is not only tired and old but has failed very miserably many times over. The reason Obama hasn't fixed everything is that it takes longer to clean up a mess than to make it. What you fail to remember — you typical ignorant, nay-saying, Republican hypocrite — is that Obama was president of the Harvard Law Review, whereas both Bushes were presidents of the Lucky Sperm Club.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Should your path cross either deliberately or unintentionally with those in high places, you'll be treated with respect by those who can help you.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. When confronted with challenging developments, your best qualities are likely to emerge and handle things well. You'll be tough to beat once the will to win is awakened within you.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Your observations and comments will carry much more weight with your peers than usual. This is because your answers will benefit an entire group rather than any one individual.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Even though your imagination might go overboard at times and make you fearful, should you actually be confronted with a crisis, you'll be remarkably courageous and wise.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Finally some balance and order is likely to be restored in a situation that has been a bit unsettling lately. Everyone involved will want to improve things and make good things happen.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Press just a little bit harder, and something on which you've been working can be brought to a successful conclusion at this time. You'll be glad you put forth the extra effort.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Your mate or special someone will be most appreciative if you give his or her concerns the same priority that you give your own. You don't have to do more; just don't do less.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Although you'll be rather fortunate in terms of the rewards you derive from your labor, you need self-gratification as well as material gain. Make sure you do a good job.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Material objectives can be achieved through what you do for others. You'll be luckier working on behalf of family and cohorts than you will be striving solely for your own desires.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Normally, it's wise to leave your credit cards at home when you go window-shopping, but today you could stumble upon a rare item.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You're likely to be quick on your feet and able to express yourself well. If you have any verbal presentations you need to make, now is the time.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Your financial pattern could at last turn the corner to a huge improvement. Those bright rays of hope will break through the toughest obstacles.

A LITTLE BIT MORE TO SQUEEZE

MATT KENT/REDFERNS/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Heading down the shore this weekend? Squeeze are in Atlantic City playing the Borgata.

Onstage

Reverse Squeeze

Squeeze's upcoming EP is a four-song demo.

"Everything is in reverse now," says Tilbrook. "We put our demos out before we do the record. In a way, a record isn't something you go on a tour to promote. A record is something you put out after a tour. The important thing is, I want people to listen. Not only are we 'Tempted' and 'Black Coffee In Bed,' we're a lot of other things too."

There's more to pop music than girls and boys and the goings on between them, right? Take the three new songs that Brit vets Squeeze are playing this summer: The titles are "Tommy," "Top of the Form" and "Honey Trap." Working backwards, let's guess that "Honey Trap" is about a girl …

"You hit the nail right on the head," laughs co-frontman Glenn Tilbrook.

Then "Top of the Form" would be about school …

"Absolutely right the second time. The only one you won't be able to guess is 'Tommy,'" Tilbrook adds.

Is it a reference to The Who?

"Nothing whatsoever," he says. "It's based on an incident in the British press; some mother giving an absolute rant against black people. There was a similar incident in a store. This song is about someone who isn't attractive in any way."

It's about racism, a heavy topic for a pop band.

"I'm pleased that we're writing about things like that. It ties into what Squeeze has done for 35 years. We've always had an eye on what is going on around us, but we've always managed to write about it in a personal rather than politicized way."

Though Squeeze reunited several years ago, these are Tilbrook and co-founder Chris Difford's first new songs in more than a dozen years, and they're shaping up to be "our best record ever," says Tilbrook.

"As much as I love our past, we can't just exist on that. We'd go mad and we'd turn into a band I don't want to turn into."

Bastille Day at Parc

Saturday, 227 S. 18th St.
www.parc-restaurant.com
Parc conveniently celebrates its fourth anniversary on Bastille Day, France's answer to the Fourth of July. Stop by the Rittenhouse brasserie on both Bastille Day proper (Saturday) and Sunday for special cocktails and menus, a meandering accordion player and the adult equivalent of fireworks: $20 bottles of wine to take the edge off those baguettes. Oui, s'il vous plait!

Rest in peace, Penn State: Is death penalty on deck?

- Freeh Report has caused chaos in Happy Valley
- NCAA may ban school from football, but should it?

Penn State's football hierarchy did everything in its power to cover up a hideous child-sex abuse scandal. For many loyalists, and the most staunch Joe Paterno supporters, the latest findings — detailed in the Freeh Report — are enough to make them sick.

Fans are calling to tear down the legendary coach's statue. That's tame. Talking heads are asking for the NCAA to institute the death penalty.

"Children were victimized. That's the bottom line. Nothing else matters," ESPN personality Stephen A. Smith wrote on Twitter. "The only thing we should be talking about is when will PSU's football program receive THE DEATH PENALTY. At least a 5-five ban. Period."

Caller after caller on local radio talk shows echoed those sentiments, with bans ranging from one year to five. Back at Happy Valley, they have the tough task of picking up the pieces — and somehow moving forward and re-building Penn State's image.

"With the release of the Freeh Report, we are beginning to correct our failures, promote healing and build a stronger tomorrow for Penn State," the university said in a statement. "We are continuing the process of addressing the most painful chapter in the university's history so that we can heal and move forward."

MIKE GREGER
mgreger@metro.us

End of the line?

The death penalty is the harshest thing the NCAA can do to an athletic program. It calls for banning a school from competing in a sport for at least one year. And it has only been enforced five times. Here they are:

- Kentucky basketball lost one season for point-shaving.
- Southwestern Louisiana hoops was penalized two seasons for academic fraud.
- SMU football got two years for paying players and lying.
- Morehouse College soccer dropped two seasons for using professionals.
- MacMurray College tennis lost two years due to a scholarship issue.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Paterno's legacy is forever tarnished after the findings of the Freeh Report.

Death penalty debate

WHY THEY SHOULD ...

The administration, including head coach Joe Paterno, were complicit in covering up Jerry Sandusky's sex-abuse scandal. That's fact now, following Louis Freeh's conclusive report. A series of e-mails shows that they knew about the rape allegations and chose not to report them to police. It was the "humane" thing to do, according to correspondences. From a moral standpoint, they failed everyone miserably.

WHY THEY WON'T ...

Well, this is more about precedence than anything else. The NCAA has never dealt with anything like this. They are used to enforcing free tattoos and boosters paying players. The Jerry Sandusky scandal is a legal issue, so — as horrific as the crime is — does the NCAA have jurisdiction? And is it fair to punish the current recruits, coaches and players who had absolutely nothing to do with the scandal?

▶ Cole Hamels is a free agent after this season and remains without an extension. The Phillies could choose to trade him at the July 31 deadline and hope he chooses to return next season.

'Indecent Proposal' bad scenario for Hamels, Phillies

◗ If team wants ace, sign him now ◗ Trading Cole to contender is dangerous ◗ Dodgers making best push

The notion that it would be fine if the Phillies trade Cole Hamels to a contender this month and reacquire their young, homegrown ace smacks of the film, "Indecent Proposal."

Woody Harrelson's character makes a deal with a billionaire played by Robert Redford in which he trades his wife, Demi Moore, for a night, in exchange for $1 million.

Of course, it didn't work out for Harrelson. He dealt the love of his life and was tortured by his choice. Life wasn't the same.

Yes, Harrelson and Moore reunited at the end of the flick, but that's Hollywood. There is no guarantee that if the Phillies deal Hamels that "Hollywood" will re-sign with the only team he has ever known.

Despite Hamels' All-Star comments — the pitcher noted that he would give the Phillies right of first refusal in the offseason, if he is dealt — the masses aren't convinced.

"I don't buy it," a National League scout said. "I just think you open up a can of worms when you trade somebody. The odds are against someone traded coming back months later as a free agent."

Quoted

"He's like a kid who has been in one relationship his whole life. Trade him to a team that goes on to win a World Series. ... He could have a different view."

NL SCOUT, ON HAMELS POSSIBLY BEING TRADED AND RETURNING

Hamels pointed to the precedent set by his teammate Cliff Lee.

"It's still something that doesn't happen usually," the scout said. "When somebody leaves, generally they're gone. When you look at Hamels, who knows what will happen? He's like a kid who has been in one relationship his whole life. He gets married young and that's all he knows. Trade him to a team that potentially goes on to win a World Series. ... He could have a different view of everything. If you want him — and young aces are hard to find — you don't take that risk, even if you get something in return."

Dodgers ace Clayton Kershaw, who was hanging with Hamels during last week's All-Star Game, would love to see the San Diego native in Dodger blue.

"Who wouldn't want Cole on their team?" Kershaw said. "He's tremendous. If I were the Phillies. I would sign him. Otherwise, he's going to be out there as the marquee free agent. and it'll be much harder to sign him when there are other teams bidding for him. If I were the Phillies, I would give him what he wants. It'll be interesting to see what happens. Once you become a free agent, most of the time the player doesn't come back."

Sixers officially part with Brand, sign Young to deal

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Brand never lived up to the megadeal he signed, but he still turned in a productive four seasons with the Sixers.

The Sixers made official what was reported last week: Elton Brand is gone.

The team announced Thursday that it waived the veteran forward and designated him as the amnesty player. The move comes with an $18.2 million price tag, but the amount comes off the Sixers' salary cap. They used some of that savings to sign Nick Young to a one-year deal worth a reported $6 million.

"On behalf of the Philadelphia 76ers, I want to thank Elton for his contributions to our organization and city," said Sixers president Rod Thorn. "Decisions of this nature are never easy, particularly when it involves a player of Elton's talent and character. He worked tirelessly for the overall good of the team every time he put on a Sixers uniform, and we wish him nothing but the best."

Brand, who signed as a free agent in 2008, averaged 13.3 points and 7.4 rebounds in 246 games in four seasons.

MJ chimes in on Kobe's prediction

Much has been made of Kobe Bryant's claim that this year's Olympic hoops squad could beat the 1992 Dream Team. Now, the greatest has made his thoughts known.

"For him to compare those two teams is not one of the smarter things he ever could have done," Michael Jordan told The Associated Press.

Bryant stated this year's team would win in a close game. Charles Barkley said the Dream Team would win by double digits. Jordan said he "laughed" when he first heard the comparison.

"I'd like to think that we had 11 Hall of Famers on that team, and whenever they get 11 Hall of Famers you call and ask me who had the better Dream Team," he said.
